

The FCC is suppose to protect the public from the misuse of the public air waves. Instead you have pandered to large corporate donors, given large portions of the market to single entities, and now you are allowing them to misuse the airwaves for their own political agenda.

It has the appearance of Quid Pro Quo. You allow them to control the airwaves. They give you free campaign advertisements.

Sinclair and Murdock both clearly have a political ax to grind and the fact that they are allowed to do it free of charge on my airwaves is infuriating. Allowing large corporations to dominate is destroying the media's credibility. Start revoking licenses. Start doing the job you are suppose to be doing.
